Financial Services vs Lending Products

Customer depth is improving. Members grew to 14.7M in Q1 2026, while total products reached 22.2M. Products grew faster than members, lifting products per member to about 1.51 and strengthening cross-buy. This suggests SoFi is not only adding users, but also deepening engagement across its ecosystem.

SoFi's lending engine remains strong, with Q1 2026 originations of $12.18B. Deposits also grew to $40.24B, supporting lending growth, but the deposit-to-loan ratio declined to 95.4% as loans expanded faster. Credit risk does not show an immediate headline red flag, though credit card NCO remains the highest-risk category.

Diversification is improving, but not fully proven. Lending remains the largest revenue and profit engine, while Financial Services is becoming meaningful. Technology Platform weakened sharply in Q1 2026, so it should be treated as a recovery lever rather than proof that SoFi has already reduced lending dependency.

Executive Recommendations

SoFi's GROWTH QUALITY is strong on customer depth, funding quality, and profitability. However, leadership should monitor cash conversion, credit mix, and customer-friction signals while improving diversification beyond lending and proving Technology Platform recovery.

RECOMMENDED STRATEGY: Scale sustainably by expanding the ecosystem while improving cash conversion, strengthening funding quality, and accelerating Technology Platform recovery.

! IMPROVE / FIX

SEGMENT DIVERSIFICATION

- Lending still drives 56.1% of revenue
- Financial Services is meaningful at 37.4%
- Diversification is improving but not fully proven

TECHNOLOGY PLATFORM PERFORMANCE

- Tech Platform revenue fell to $75.1M in Q1 2026
- Revenue share declined to 6.6%
- Treat Tech Platform as a recovery lever, not proof of diversification
